The Mario Banquet-The Geneva Arbitration-Livingstone Again-The Fisk Estate-The Metis Investigation, Etc. New York, September 7 .- The Lotus Club ast evening, tendered a reception to Mario. The evening was passed in toasts and speeches, and a general good time was enjoyed.

A special to the World, from Geneva, says that the Tribunal of Arbitration yesterday ronounced a decision making an award for asses caused by the Alabama, Florida and Shenandoah, and for the expenditures incurred by the United States in pursuit of these vessels. The award is said to be seven million dollars. This, however, is not posi tively known. The Herald to-day publishes full size fac similes of Livingstone's letter from Zanzibar to Dr. Stearns, February, 1866, a letter to the President of the American Geographical Society, January, 1862, and a note written at Unyaniambe, March, 1872, having reference to Stanley. It also reproduces a fac simile of his letter to James Gordon Bennett, Jr. which has been the great subject of discussion and criticism of the press. The similarity of the hand writing in all four letters is very striking, and the Herald thinks that it is sufficient to dispel the least breath of suspicion regarding the genuineness of his

Early Return of General Stanley's Yel lowstone Expedition-A Fight With the Indians-An Indian Party Coming

SIOUX CITY, September 7.—Private letters were received from Fort Sully, Dakota, a day or two since, from General Stanley, who is in command of the Yellowstone expedition. At that time, August 25, they were at O'Fallon's creek and expected to reach Fort Rice on their return about the 25th of the present month. It was the intention, when the expedition started, to remain out, surveying and exploring the Yellowstone valley until the 31st of October, and perhaps later. The letters state that but little trouble has been met with from the Indians, but in view of the fact that Major Baker, who is in command of a similar escort for the surveyors working east from Fort Ellis, Montana, was attacked and had a fight, it is believed that they have had something to do with Stanley's early return. Full particulars of Baker's fight are not made public, but it is known that he was attacked at daylight on the morning of the 14th of August by a large body of Indians, and after a sharp fight drove off. The fight took place about one hundred and fifty miles east of Fort Ellis, near where Pryor's river empties into the

by her to matrimony.

The latest from Maine is that the interest is centering in the Fifth District, which is flooded with Hale and Zack Chandler's money. This is ordinarily the closest district in the State. It is really the only district the Liberals have any hope of carrying. Hale is not popular outside of his party, but it is generally believed that whether elected or defeated at this election his interest as a citizen has closed, as it is supposed he will take up his residence in Mich gan with his father-in-law, Senator Chaniler, after the expiration of his term, if elec ted, and immediately after the election if defeated. He is making a very active can-vass, and is raising money without stint, he having a large fortune of his own means, the full money bags, of Chandler and the govern-

THE Louisville Convention is very generally set down as a disgusting fail-

THE Maine election comes off on Monday, and it is probable the Republican ticket will be elected by from twelve to fifteen thousand majority.

THE tax payers of this county pay about seventy-five thousand dollars a year more for services in the county offices than there is any necessity for.

We shall probably never know until the day the sea gives up its dead and the graves open, how much the Louisville side show cost the Administration.

THE Journal is bringing its wit to bear in ridicule of the desired change of the voting places. The Journal's wit reminds us of a barn door-it is just about as sharp.

THE prevailing accidents at the present time are marine disasters, fully a dozen having been reported within a week, and the smashing of wagons and carriages by

THE Republican majority in Vermont is estimated at 26,000. The Governor's majority in 1868 was 27,328. There are fewer Greeley men elected to the Legislature than there were Democrats last year.

LIBERAL Republicans are being patted on the back a good deal now by the reelectionists. They are "honest but deluded," say the organs. But Gen. Tom Browne says every one who votes for Greeley is a dishonest man.

WE are told by a prominent Grant man that the late County Treasurer received during his last year $28,000. A man with this could live very handsomely and retire at the end of two terms with one hundred thousand dollars in clean cash. It is a fat thing.

A prominent county candidate in great wrath yesterday ordered his copy of The News discontinued. We feel sorry for him for he will lose a great deal of good reading, and as he confidently expects to be elected by Liberal votes, he ought to know what the Liberals have to say for themselves. Perhaps though it was the ten cents a week that hurt him. Canvassing is expensive.

THE Administrationists have had to call upon the women for help. A dispatch from Washington says the National Republican Campaign Committee have finally decided to put all the woman's rights advocates on the stump in New York during the present month. Engagements have already been made in the interior of the State for some of the most prominent stong-minded, which includes the names of Mrs. Livermore, Elizabeth Cady Stanton and Susan B. Anthony.

ONE of the most sagacious and thoroughly informed politicians in this county and a strong Administrationist, who has recently returned to the city after several months absence is considerably disgusted over the management of the campaign. The abuse showered upon Liberal Republicans he especially condemns, asserting that they had a perfect right to support Mr. Greeley if they preferred him, and that if a little toleration had been exercised there would have been no opposition county ticket to endanger the results of the support Mr. Greeley if they preferred him, and that if a little toleration had been exercised there would have been no opposition county ticket to endanger the results of the resu the success of the regular ticket.

"Boss" Tween is waiting to see which side will treat him the best before he declares for anybody. As he is very much prejudiced against Greeley and the Tribune he is not likely to favor him. He thinks he can still control twenty thousand votes in the city, and says he would not bet that the Democrats get a majority there. The great man of a year ago is a very small one now, notwithstanding his boastings. His overthrow, with his Saturnalian crew, was the first victory in a reform we hope to see spread all over the country and sweep all the scoundrels out of power.

A CORRESPONDENT inquires of us if it is true that Captain E. T. Johnson, a candidate for the Legislature on the Administration ticket, during the war "drew a "prize through the Provost Marshal of "this district in the shape of a plain suit "of blue clothes, with brass buttons, and "that not liking it he prevailed on the au- "thorities to exchange it for a better suit,"

THE GREELEY SENTIMENT.

How it has Grown and is Growing. [From the Louisville Courier-Journal]

The Grant papers would have their readers elieve that the reaction by which Mr. Gree ley who was to have been borne into the Presidency is subsiding. If they really entertain such an opinion they are greatly mis-taken. The wave has been increasing in volume and force from the first, and its swell more irresistible now than ever.

When Horace Greeley was nominated Cincinnati it was a surprise to the country, but it was a most agreeable surprise to the large majority of those opposed to Grant and Frantism. People at once saw the fitness of he selection and wondered that everybody had not been agreed on making Greeley the candidate against Grant all the time. From he day when the nomination was made at Cincinnati by the Liberals there never was the slightest doubt that it would be concurred in by the Democracy at Baltimore. From Maine to Florida, and from the Atlantic to the Pacific, the members of the Democratic party have unmistakable indications of their intention to join with the Liberals in preventing Grant's re-election with Gree-ley; and when the Baltimore Convention met nothing was left for it to do but give formal expression to that intention.

This condition of things is of course any thing but pleasing to President Grant and his friends. The Democratic party was beaten at the last Presidential election, but that was all. The Republicans had nothing beyond the bare victory to boast of. The Demo-cratic vote, reintorced by a very small por-tion of the members of the old Republican party, can not fail to elect, and under the lead of such men as Schurz, Trumbull, Sumner, Tipton and Palmer it is evident that hundreds of thousands of the old Republicans will rally beneath the old Greeley banner. Appreciating the peril in which they stand, the Grant leaders are greatly alarmed They see the sceptre about to depart from them, and their cunning men have put their heads together to devise ways and means of preventing impending defeat. With the Liberals they can do nothing. The men who think as Schurz and Sumner, Gratz Brown and Greeley do are too much in earnest to be dissuaded from pursuing the course they have entered upon. Therefore, the Radical wire-workers concluded to di-rect their energies toward the division of the Democratic party. They were convinced that their only hope for Grant's re-election lay in Democratic dissension. It was a desperate undertaking, but desperate diseases require desperate remedies. Mr. Greeley had been nominated at Baltimore with more perfect unanimity than any other man whose name was ever presented before a tional Democratic Convention, but this did not deter them. Ever since the adjournment of the Baltimore Convention they have been exerting themselves to bring another Richmond into the field. The Grant boil has at last come to a head, and a mass of corruption has been let loose at Louisville during the last three days the sight of which is enough to turn the stomach of every honest Democrat. The Blanton Duncan Convention has come and gone, and all who know anything about it will concur with us when we say that it was at once the most impudent and clumsy fraud ever attempted to be perpetrated in the name of Democracy. It was composed chiefly of political shysters and lead-beats, hired to come here in the interests of "straight Democracy" by Grant com-Mr. Conrad, of Pennsylvania, a deluded Democrat, tells us that he procured his pass to Louisville at the Philadelphia headquarters, and that every member of the Pennsylvania delegation, except himself, is Grant Radical; and so with other delegations. Special Bank Deposits.

It is said that the recent bank robbery in Baltimore will bring before the courts there the question of the liability of national banks for special deposits. Nearly five years ago Mr. H. L. Hulburd, then comptroller of the currency, stated in a letter to Mr. Norris, cashier of the First National Bank of Balticashier of the First National Bank of Baltimore, that "it is a direct transgression of the provisions of the national currency act for a national bank to assume the custody and safekeeping of miscellaneous valuables. It is dangerous to the bank and in the nature of a fraud upon the stockholders. If the valuables are lost through the carelessness or dishonesty of a bank officer or clerk, the officers are undoubtedly liable; and if the practice has been sactioned by the Board of Directors, they will be held liable; and as they are agents of the stockholders, the stockholders, would, in the end, be required to make good the resulting loss." Notwithly, in the 91st year of her age, and fortieth holders, would, in the end, be required to make good the resulting loss." Notwith-standing this ruling, national banks have make good the resulting loss." Notwithstanding this ruling, national banks have continued to receive parcels from depositors
without charge. A judicial decision confirming Mr. Hulburd's opinion would put an end to the practice.

I had taken the early expres train, and being somewhat tired and alto-gether sleepy, had stretched myself upon a seat for as comfortable a nap as circumstances would permit. I slept sound, for I could in those days sleep well almost anywhere, and did not awaken until the conductor came for my ticket. The essential piece of pasteboard did not awaken until the conductor came for my ticket. The essential piece of pasteboard could not be found. I was positive I had purchased a ticket; indeed, I remembered distinctly having shown it to the baggage clerk at the time of checking my trunk.

The conductor grew impatient, passed to the other end of the car and returned to me, I had made the discovery that my pocket book had been pieked, and in proof of my story showed him my baggage check.

It was useles—If you have travelled much you are awa that a virtuous conductor takes no man word; in fact, all men have designs upon the company's dividends except himself. It was perfectly natural, therefore, that the faithful steward in question should say:

"The check is all right; but how do I know that it belongs to you? I will take the money for your fare or stop the train and put you off, just as you choose."

What could I do? Protestations amounted to nothing, and my fellow passengers with the usual tendency of humanity to trample upon a fallen man, showed clearly by their looks and expressions that they thought me a sneaking rogue who would steal a passage if he could. They paid money, why should I not pay mine? Few men would ever see heaven if judgment was rendered by a jury—except themselves. I not pay mine? You may imagine my feelings when compelled to return that twoings when compensed to retain that two-penny bit of paper to the boy, with the mut-tered excuse that I had no change, and the utter contemptuous expression on the boy's face as he received it. I immediately stepped into the office of the Daily Banner and wrote a paragraph of my recent mishap, taking care to make it as amusing as possible. When complete I handed it to the clerk. He read it, laughed, and took it into the private office. Coming back a few minutes after, he told the bookkeeper to give me fifty cents, It was not much, but more than I expected. Well. I continued my walk until I finally. It was not much, but more than I expected. Well, I continued my walk until I finally reached the end of the street which terminates at the 8— river, here spanned by a long covered bridge, and was surprised to see upon reaching the opposite side that I would be required to pay toll. A young girl came up to the door of the little office as I stepped up to the door of the little office as I stepped up and inquired how much I should pay, drawing forth my solitary shinplaster. Oh, said she, with a smile and a slight blush, "we do not charge ministers anything. It was not a bad joke, but I suppressed the laugh that rose to my lips, and thanking her for the consideration shown to the clergy, I turned about and retraced my steps to the hotel, not without slight twinges of conscience for allowing the mistake to pass and taking advantage of it.

My first duty next morning was to seek some knight of the razor. I had noticed a pleasant little shop at no great distance from the hotel in my walk the previous day. Thinking I should do no better by looking further I repaired to that. There was in attendance a boy about twelve years of age, who stated that his father, the proprietor of the shop, had gone to a neighboring city, and would not return before noon. Without any hesitation I asked for the loan of a razor, and proceded to operate on myself. occupied, the customers began to present themselves, expressing great dissatisfaction on learning how matters stood. Now, although I am a proud man, I am not, thank God, cursed with that species of vanity which prevents a man's doing certain kinds of honest labor sumply because they are not genteel. Here was an opportunity offered me to at least earn the price of my breakfast. me to at least earn the price of my breakfast.

I took advantage of it. Told the first man that came in after I had completed shaving myself, I would shave him. I did so. In fact I did quite a brisk business for a couple of hours, and if any of the unfortunate in-dividuals who came under my hand had any doubt of my fitness for the business, they certainly expressed none. At the expiration of this time I had begun to think I had done sufficient, and feeling rather hungry having no breakfast I divided the proceeds with the boy and prepared to return to my hotel. But I was not done yet. As I was brushing my hat a young dandified specimen of human-ity came in. Resolved that he should be the last, I went to work upon him. When he came to pay me I was, to say the least, somewhat surprised to see him deliberately produce my own pocket-book—the one lost. Standing on no ceremouy, I snatched it from his hand, and demanded in no gentle one how it came in his possession.

Without stopping to reply other than by a volley of imprecations, as he reached the loor, he tumbled rather than run down the stairs into the street. Waiting for neither hat or coat, I followed—the pocket book in my hand. We measured off considerable ground in a short space of time. On, on. It was an exciting chase. Men, boys and dogs joined the pursuit; the cries of stop thief growing louder and increasing. What an uproar there was. Suddenly there came a lash of light, sharp and vivid for an instant, then utter darkness. A policeman, mistaking me for the thief, had gently tapped me ing he for the thier, had gently tapped me upon the head, as their custom is, and with the usual result, the thief escaped, and I the victim, was apprehended. My appearance told heavily against me, but my story being fully corroborated by the boy at the barber shop, I was released.

Upon examining the wallet I found my own money intact, and about one hundred and thirty dollars besides. That is all the story

"Not a bad speculation after all," said I, as he concluded. "Well, perhaps so. No, it was not; but still my advice holds good. Never place a railway ticket in your wallet."

Dividing Commissions.

A Hartford paper says: Captain Colvocoresses, whose suicide or murder last June at Bridgeport, propounded a conundrum worth $195,000 to some twenty life procured his insurance through an offices. agent whose knock-down argument was an offer to divide commissions to the extent of ten per cent. As admitted by this agent, "that was what weakened him." If the liability of the companies is finally established, or a compromise effected, they will probably take the same view, and complain that "that was what weakened them." It needs very little argument to prove that a man who is led into a $200,000 line of life insurance mainly by an offer of ten per cent. of the agent's commission could hardly be a proper subject. But, be this as it may, it is obvious enough that here was a pretty plain illustration of the demoralizing influence of dividing commissions.

Never Hurt Him.

It is reported that a man in Cincinnati fell from the top of a four story building, the other day, to the stone sidewalk beneath, without being injured in the least. He was a life insurance agent and fell on his cheek. At the time of his fall he was leaning on the edge of the roof, shoving his papers at paint-er whom he had treed on a swinging scaffold Embalming Dead Bodies. From the Maysville Bulletin.

Dr. John A. Mitchell, the discoverer of new process for embalming dead bodies, has just received letters of patent for his invention, and will take immediate steps to intro-duce it to common use, It has been thor-oughly tested, and will undoubtedly accomplish all that is claimed for it. The invention consists of an apparatus embracing a cylindrical bodyholder, a semi-cylindrical ice-receptacle, a chest or box to contain chemicals, tubes for the connection of a belcongeal and embalm the same, and tubes for the escape of moisture and noxious exhala-lows therewith to force cold air and chemi-cal spray and fumes over the body, to dry tions. The process of embalming by this apparatus is as follows: The ice-chest is first filled with ice and closed tightly, and the body inclosed within its holder or case, after which the bellows—a rotary kind preferred—is connected and worked from a to an hour and a half, according to the size of the body. By this means a current of air is forced through the ice of air is loreed through the ice and cooled thereby, and brought in contact with the body, driving therefrom all the animal heat, moisture and gases. The chemical trough is now filled with a composition of alcohol, sulphuric ether, carbolic acid, corrosive sublimate, arsenic and chloroform, after which the bellows is again worked for a half hour or an hour, and the chemicals thrown over the body in form of spray, which fully impregnates it. The cover of the body case is removed, and chemicals of the same nature as those mentioned poured into said case through a gauze or per-forated shelf, after which the cover is replaced, the tubes closed airtight, and the body allowed to remain subject to the fumes of the chemicals for from ten to twenty nours. The body will then be perfectly em balmed and may be kept for a great length of time without danger of decaying. The pro-cess and apparatus is the result of years of research and study on the part of Dr. Mitchell, and reflects very great credit upon his inventive genius. It is certainly destined to be commonly used, and we trust will result

An American church has been organized in the city of flome, having representatives from the Baptist, Congregational, Episcopal Methodist, Presbyterian and Unitarian Churches, based upon the simple principles of the Gospel, embracing all who acknowledge themselves as God's children, and in sincerity and truth love the Lord Jesus Christ. It is intended to bury denominational differences, and illustrate the real unity of spirit which is being developed among the Protestant churches. Rev. Henry R. Waite officiates as pastor.

Growth of Disease and Civilization. The attention of learned men has been frequently called of late to the appearance of ises unknown or uncommon some years. There is, moreover, a rapid increase of some disorders common at all times. Thus, insanity is increasing in Great Britain at a much greater rate than the population. In 1859 there were classed as insone in England and Wales 37,762, while upon the 1st of Jannary, 1872, there were 58,640, an increase of over fifty-five per cent, in thirteen years. In 1859 there were 186 lunatics to every one hundred thousand persons, while now there are 249 in the same number. And all this is true in the face of the fact that great attention has been paid to the treatment of the insane within a few years. Disease of the heart is also rapidly increasing in the male sex. Within twenty years the number of deaths among men be tween the ages of twenty and forty-five (the working years of a man's life) has nearly doubled, while there has been hardly any increase in the mortality of women by the san disease. The result is due to the feverish excitement of modern life, which naturally exhausts the vital powers of men engaged in the competition of business or the general strife for position and wealth. Neuralgia, one of the most common of diseases now. was hardly known a century since, and softening of the brain is said hardly ever to have been thought of. It is but a little while since some startling statistics in reference to the growing prevalence of Bright's disease in this country were published. The reader will observe that most of these disorders arise from trouble with the brain, the heart, or the nervous system. In searching for the causes the student is led to the special features of our modern life. He finds in the ncrease of comforts, sanitary improvements advance of medical science, etc., the expla-nation of the decrease of mortality. But the growth of luxury, lack of open air exercise, irregularity of living, pressure of business and overwork account for the exhaustion of mental and physical energy and the breaking down of men before they have really done their proper work. Civilization has not rought unmingled good results. not live as fast as at present without a sacrifice of health and vigor.

The Death Rate. The papers of New York are troubled at the enormous death rate of that city. The number of deaths there average double that of London. The rate of mortality in New York is fifty-one to the one thousand inhabitants, or about nine hundred and eighteen deaths a week. Paris, with half a million more inhabitants, shows but eight hundred and fifty-four deaths; Berlin six hundred and thirty-three; Vienna three hundred and sixty; Rome two hundred and eighteen. The highest average of all of all these is that of Rome, which is only forty-seven to the one one thousand. Other cities of Europe, when compared with New York, show the same state of facts, which leaves that city, considering her advantages of climate and power of sanitary regulation, the most unhealthy city in the world, without any assignable reason for being so.

A well-known travelling man, whose busi ness calls him out of the city during the entire week, was surprised last night on coming home, rather unexpectedly, to find that his wife had gone out walking with another gentleman. The husband called on the landlord for an explanation, and he could not furnish any, consequently the former started to find out for himself, but did not succeed. He waited impatiently until 12:15, when his wife, accompanied by a lady friend and a gentleman, came tripping along. The irate husband "bounced" the man, and after considerable vituperation, drew a revolver and threatened to perforate him with holes large enough to run walking-sticks through. The matter was finally adjusted to the satisfaction

Spontaneous Combustion Again. Inasmuch as in the experiment at Ryan & Higgins's school desk manufactory the other day with excelsior shavings, the material used did not actually take fire, some doubting Thomases would not believe that spontaneous combustion would take place in so short a time. Yesterday the matter was settled beyond cavil. A pound or two of waste and rags were procured, placed in a barrel and partially saturated with linseed oil and shellac, used in polishing furniture, and the barrel then covered In half an hour a bright and exceedingly hot flame burst out and consumed the barrel and contents, before the eyes of Dan Glazier, Chief Fire Engineer, Charles Rhoads and others of No. 1 engine house, the proprietors, engineer and watchman of the factory and other gentlemen, who all agree that the test was fair, and the regult as above stated.

The Colored Baptist Ministerial Associa tion has been in session throughout this week, discussing matters principally connected with the spiritual. It appears, however, that the representative from Laporte, Rev. J. I. Winyard has heretofore expressed a politcal preference for Mr. Greeley, which abominable heresy" made his presence among the brethren very irritating, and they showed it in several ways; among others by throwing the independent minister from off keep no other. A CARD.

Reply to Mr. J. R. Elder's Card:

To the Editor of The Evening News: In regard to Mr. Elder's suggesting that the Courts might call my taking 300 or 400 gallons of water without authority, stealing, would ask what he calls drawing water from the upper level, for which the mill-owners paid, and upon which they depend-ed, but to which the Water Works Company had no right, as shown in the fact that Mr. Elder himself gave a letter and bond that the Company would do so no more, but did not propose to pay damages, as I did.

Another case of this kind is pending in Court by Mr. James Skillen. Possibly he may think the Courts will call this stealing.
Mr. Elder states that I am still liable to the Water Works Company for the value of the water, and for taking the same without authority. I look for no lenity from the Water Works Company. The complaint handed into Court was for the full penalty, $50, whereas the Judge only fined $1 and costs. Mr. Elder states that my remarks on the street and testimony in court are unworthy a mention. All I have said are facts, which ne can not deny, and I could tell him of nundreds of other facts which he would be lad to treat as unworthy of attention also. He had better make known to the public the nature of the deposition taken at Terre Haute to the effect that the canal had water power for thirty run of stone in the dryest time, when they could furnish water for two. This was done to cheat the State out of a piece of land north of Market street, worth rom $25,000 to $40,000, and for which they are now collecting a rental of over $1,000 per year from property which Mr. Tom. Sharpe was authorized by the Legislature to sell for the State thirty-five years ago, not for the canal.

All I have said on the street and testified in Court can not be gainsaid. Every one knows I am no sneak, but tell the whole truth. I have said this canal transaction has been a swindle from first to last. I told Mr. Elder I would sooner be caught stealing from a henroost than be mixed up in this swindle, and so I would. I am willing to meet them with any charges in this or any other way. JOHN CARLISLE.

BUSINESS NOTIONS.

Founded on a Rock!

The disappointed adventurers who have from time to time attempted to run their worthless potions against Drake's Plantation Bitters, vow that they can not understand what foundation there is for its amazing popularity. The explanation is simple enough. The reputation of the world renowned tonic is founded upon a rock, the rock of experience. All its ingredients are pure and wholesome. How, then, could tricksters and cheats expect to rival it with compounds of cheap drugs and refuse liquor, or with liquorless trash in a state of acetous fermentation? Of course the charlatans have come to grief. Their little game has failed. Their contempt for the sagacity of the community has been fitly punished. Meanwhile Plantation Bitters seem to be in a fair way of eventally superseding every other medicinal preparation included in the class to which it belongs. In every State and Territory of the Union it is, to day, the accepted specific for nervous debility, dyspepsis, fever and ague, rheumatism, and all aliments involving a deficiency of vital power.
